Global Macro & Crypto Market Intelligence

Fri, Aug 28 2026

RISK-ON Risk appetite is supported by strong ETF inflows, tighter HY credit spreads and a rising copper-to-gold ratio.

The macro backdrop broadly supports a risk-on regime, although intraday price action is more cautious. VIX at 14.68 remains subdued, while HY OAS at 2.63 and a 12-basis-point tightening signal easing credit stress; meanwhile, DXY at 99.68 rose, the 10-year Treasury yield reached 4.726%, and Nasdaq 100 futures fell 0.71%. Total crypto market capitalization stood at $2.64 trillion, down 5.34% over 24 hours, with BTC lower by 3.57% and ETH by 3.25%; nevertheless, Bitcoin dominance remained at 59.02% and the Fear & Greed Index stayed in greed at 73. Core PCE released on August 26 rose 0.2% month over month, in line with expectations, while jobless claims at 203,000 came below the 208,000 forecast; markets are looking ahead to the September 16 FOMC meeting, with the 2026 median dot at 3.8%. Strong ETF inflows and a 3.45% rise in the copper-to-gold ratio preserve a constructive foundation, but the negative Coinbase premium, negative funding and sharp declines in open interest point to near-term deleveraging.

STRATEGIC RESEARCH FOCUS

COMMODITIES

Is the Iran war turning gas disruptions into a European energy risk?

QatarEnergy's cancellation of gas deliveries to Edison until early November warrants deeper work on how the conflict is transmitting into European supply security and energy costs. The concrete signals are the scope and duration of the cancellation, alongside persistent repricing in energy markets and energy equities such as XLE.

PRIMARY SOURCES / REPORTS:

- Reuters — QatarEnergy cancels gas deliveries to Italy's Edison until early November over Iran war - Reuters — Check the cancellation's volume, contractual duration, rationale, and implications for Italian supply.
- EIA — Weekly Petroleum Status Report — Track U.S. petroleum inventories, supply flows, and the energy-market transmission of geopolitical risk.
- FRED — St. Louis Fed Economic Data — Check whether natural-gas, oil, and energy-cost series are showing persistent supply-driven pressure.

EQUITIES

Is AI spending eroding Big Tech’s profitability and cash-flow advantage?

Big Tech’s massive AI outlays are testing the long-standing thesis of strong margins and cash generation; the Nasdaq 100 futures decline and the 3.25% drop in SMH make the question immediately investable. The research threshold is whether company-level capex growth is being matched by revenue and earnings conversion, and how free cash flow and capital spending move together in SEC filings.

PRIMARY SOURCES / REPORTS:

- CNBC — Big Tech's massive AI spending is putting one of its longtime strengths to the test — Disaggregate AI spending’s effects on margins, cash flow, depreciation, and investor expectations.
- SEC EDGAR Full-Text Search — Search recent 10-K, 10-Q, and 8-K filings for capex, data-center investment, depreciation, and free-cash-flow disclosures from major technology companies.
- CNBC — Apple hikes subscription prices for Apple TV and Apple One in the U.S. — Assess whether Apple’s price increases offset licensing costs and what they imply for its services-revenue and margin strategy.

CRYPTO

Do ETF inflows and leverage unwinding reveal genuine Bitcoin and Ethereum demand?

On August 27, Bitcoin ETFs recorded total inflows of $242.3 million and Ethereum ETFs $225.8 million, even as total crypto market capitalization fell 5.34% in 24 hours; BTC and ETH open interest also dropped 14.92% and 21.17%, respectively. The research question is whether institutional spot demand can absorb deleveraging, with BTC support at 76,647.825, resistance at 79,614.425, and the Coinbase premium at -0.04197 as the key thresholds.

PRIMARY SOURCES / REPORTS:

- Farside — Bitcoin ETF Flows (All Data) — Check daily aggregate flows, the divergence between IBIT and FBTC, and whether inflows persist.
- Farside — Ethereum ETF Flows — Track whether Ethereum ETF inflows are broad-based across products and sustained.
- Coinglass — Derivatives Data — Monitor open interest, funding, liquidations, and futures positioning for continued leverage unwinding.

Apple hikes subscription prices for Apple TV and Apple One in the U.S.

Apple raised prices for Apple Music by $1 per month in July, citing licensing costs.

AI Insight: Apple's price increases for Apple TV and Apple One could support services revenue growth, but they may also increase consumer sensitivity to subscription costs. Apple rose 1.58% on the day while the broader XLK technology ETF fell 1.40%, indicating that the announcement was priced positively at the company-specific level.

QatarEnergy cancels gas deliveries to Italy's Edison until early November over Iran war - Reuters

AI Insight: QatarEnergy's cancellation of gas deliveries to Italy's Edison through early November raises the geopolitical risk premium around European energy supply and industrial costs. However, Brent crude fell 1.84% and HY OAS tightened by 12 basis points, suggesting markets are not yet pricing the development as a broad energy or credit shock.
