

WEEKLY DEEP DIVE

Strategic Liquidity, Macro Themes & Crypto Rotation

Sun, Aug 16 2026

Data cut: 2026-08-16 19:34 TRT

WEEK IN ONE MINUTE

NEUTRAL The NEUTRAL regime marks a cautious holding pattern in which liquidity support is offset by inflation, weak flows, and fragile market breadth.

The week is defined by the tension between supportive liquidity and weak crypto demand. The fear and greed reading is 34, BTC weekly performance is -3.2, and total weekly BTC ETF flow is -385.2, keeping sentiment defensive. Although total stablecoin supply stands at 306.353, that capital has not yet translated into broad-based risk taking. Inflation pressure and negative institutional flows create a downside bias, while easy financial conditions preserve the NEUTRAL regime.

THREE THEMES OF THE WEEK

THEME 1 · LIQUIDITY INFLATION

NFCI at -0.549 signals supportive financial conditions, but CPI at 3.88 constrains policy flexibility. The liquidity backdrop and inflation pressure offset each other.

THEME 2 · INSTITUTIONAL DEMAND

Total weekly BTC ETF flow is -385.2 and the Coinbase premium is -0.11007017407628844, indicating weak spot demand. Until institutional flows recover, the transmission of liquidity into prices may remain limited.

THEME 3 · FRAGILE BREADTH

UNI at -18.0 highlights pronounced internal weakness, while BTC is down -49.27 from its peak. Selective gains are not translating into broad-based risk appetite.

US Inflation Path (CPI, Core CPI, Core PCE YoY — 5-Year) · series date 2026-06

What happened: In June 2026, headline CPI was 3.88, core CPI was 2.86, and core PCE was 3.29.

What it means: Inflation pressure keeps downside risk elevated for risk assets and especially long-duration bonds through the September 16, 2026 FOMC meeting, with core PCE remaining above 3.29 supporting that theme.

LIQUIDITY REGIME

US Federal Reserve Net Liquidity (3-Year Weekly) · series date 2026-08-16

Chicago Fed Financial Conditions Index — NFCI (3-Year Weekly) · series date 2026-08-07 -0.549 (-0.003 w/w)

What happened: The Fed balance sheet stands at $6.76T, with a weekly change of 0.17 and a monthly change of 0.25, while NFCI has fallen to -0.549.

What it means: As long as NFCI remains below -0.549, loose financial conditions support upside risk appetite in equities and crypto assets in the near term.

What happened: The calendar includes FOMC minutes, US labor and manufacturing data, followed by European flash PMIs, with 31 days until the next FOMC.

What it means: BTC and technology equities face elevated short-term directional risk ahead of the FOMC minutes and high-frequency macro data; below-consensus US activity data would create downside risk for risk assets, with 31 days to the FOMC as the key horizon.

What happened: BTC's 30-day correlation is -0.38 with DXY, 0.35 with NDX, 0.36 with gold, and -0.02 with the US 10-year; latest YTD returns are -28.669926307223985 for BTC, 19.201531681037608 for NDX, and 2.8485978380674912 for gold.

What it means: As long as DXY continues to strengthen, the negative correlation creates near-term downside risk for BTC, while BTC's pronounced YTD lag versus NDX and gold requires confirmation in BTC before positioning for a risk-appetite recovery.

CUMULATIVE SPOT BTC ETF NET FLOWS (SINCE LAUNCH)

What happened: Bitcoin spot ETFs ended the week with -385.2 million in aggregate net flows, while Ethereum spot ETFs recorded -2.9999999999999999 million in total net flows.

What it means: With ETF-driven demand retreating in Bitcoin, BTC's near-term bias is to the downside; a return to positive weekly net flows would be the key threshold indicating that selling pressure is easing.

STABLECOIN SUPPLY & SHARE

What happened: Total stablecoin supply stood at 306.353 as of 2026-08-16, with USDT at 182.98 and USDC at 71.935.

What it means: As long as total supply remains below the 320.279 threshold, liquidity support for crypto risk assets—especially BTC and altcoins—should remain weak in the near term.

What happened: All major rotation groups were negative, with UNI leading losses at -18.0 while LINK diverged with a 13.0 gain.

What it means: In the short term, downside risk remains dominant for DeFi and meme tokens, while LINK's positive divergence needs to persist independently of broader market weakness.

What happened: Bitcoin spot is at 63290, below its 200-week average of 63996.5557421875, and -49.27 from its all-time high.

What it means: Bitcoin remaining below the 200-week average at 63996.5557421875 supports cautious short-term positioning; a reclaim of that threshold would confirm a medium-term recovery.
