RISK-ON Falling VIX and MOVE, a stronger copper-to-gold ratio and firm technology futures show that risk appetite remains dominant.

Markets are showing a more constructive backdrop consistent with the RISK_ON regime. Nasdaq 100 futures advanced, while the VIX declined and the copper-to-gold indicator strengthened. Despite short-term volatility in crypto, Bitcoin and Ethereum recovered over the past day, with gains also broadening across altcoins. However, negative ETF flows and a decline in total market capitalization indicate that risk appetite is not entirely uninterrupted. Overall, the picture points to continued selective risk-taking.

STRATEGIC RESEARCH FOCUS

Three ships through Hormuz: tracing the supply-shock transmission into oil

The reported drop to three ships transiting the Strait of Hormuz, alongside Iran-war developments, warrants research into how shipping disruption is feeding into energy-supply and freight risk pricing. The key signals are whether traffic recovers and whether weekly petroleum data show deterioration in inventories or supply flows.

PRIMARY SOURCES / REPORTS:

- Reuters — Number of ships transiting Strait of Hormuz falls to three on Wednesday, data shows - Reuters — Track the latest Hormuz transit count and whether shipping activity normalizes.
- EIA — Weekly Petroleum Status Report — Examine weekly crude, gasoline and distillate inventories, imports, exports and refinery utilization.

MACRO

Post-FOMC yields and resilient consumption: is Fed pricing being rebuilt?

Stronger-than-expected retail sales and a 5.006% US 10-year yield call for a deeper review of the Fed path and the growth-inflation balance. The key thresholds are how the FOMC statement and projections alter the current 2026 median dot of 4.1%, and whether the 10-year yield remains around 5%.

PRIMARY SOURCES / REPORTS:

- Federal Reserve — FOMC Calendar & Statements — Review the September 16 FOMC decision, statement and economic projections.
- US Treasury — Daily Yield Curve Rates — Track the 10-year yield above 5% and the current Treasury curve.
- FRED — St. Louis Fed Economic Data — Verify the retail-sales series and related macro data connecting rates, inflation and expectations.

ETF outflows and a negative Coinbase premium: temporary leverage stress or persistent demand weakness?

Net outflows of $295.9 million from Bitcoin ETFs and $224.1 million from Ethereum ETFs, combined with a negative Coinbase premium and rising BTC and ETH open interest, require a joint analysis. The concrete signals are whether Bitcoin holds the 75,650.99 support, whether the Coinbase premium recovers from -0.0976, and whether higher open interest leads to liquidations.

PRIMARY SOURCES / REPORTS:

- Farside — Bitcoin ETF Flows (All Data) — Review September 16 Bitcoin ETF net flows by total and individual fund.
- Farside — Ethereum ETF Flows — Check whether Ethereum ETF outflows continue by total and individual fund.
- Coinglass — Derivatives Data — Compare BTC and ETH open interest, funding rates and liquidation data with ETF flows.

Analyst Note: The 2Y-10Y spread is unavailable, preventing an assessment of the yield curve's growth signal. SMH rose 0.64% while total stablecoin market capitalization slipped 0.04% over 24 hours; semiconductor strength supports risk appetite, whereas the stablecoin contraction points to a modest cooling in crypto liquidity.

SPOT ETF FLOWS HISTORY (LAST 10 DAYS)

Analyst Note: On September 16, IBIT recorded $144.1 million of outflows, FBTC $52.7 million, and total spot Bitcoin ETF outflows reached $295.9 million, indicating near-term selling pressure. The fact that spot prices rose despite ETF outflows suggests that the rally has not yet received strong institutional-flow confirmation.

Impoverished by war in Iran, Afghan migrants return to Taliban rule - Reuters

AI Insight: The impact of the war in Iran on Afghan migrants highlights persistent humanitarian and geopolitical risks, but the VIX at 16.0 and a 2.1% rise in Nasdaq futures show that these risks have not yet pressured global risk pricing.

US allies fret over how Trump might play his Taiwan hand with Xi - Reuters

AI Insight: Uncertainty over U.S.-China policy toward Taiwan creates a geopolitical risk premium for technology and semiconductor supply chains. However, SMH's 0.64% gain and the DXY's 0.14% decline suggest that markets are currently pricing this risk as contained.

UN mission finds grounds to believe US committed war crimes in Iran, and Tehran crimes against humanity - Reuters

AI Insight: The UN mission's allegations of war crimes and crimes against humanity could raise the diplomatic costs of the conflict and increase the risk of sanctions or retaliation. Brent's 6.01% decline and the lower VIX indicate that the news has not yet translated into broad risk aversion.
