

RISK-OFF Persistent ETF outflows, elevated Treasury yields, and an 'Extreme Fear' reading signal severely impaired risk appetite across markets.

As of July 1, 2026, markets continue to display a clear RISK_OFF posture. Bitcoin trades at $58,890, having shed more than 19% over the past 30 days, while the Fear & Greed Index sits deep in 'Extreme Fear' territory at 11. On the macro front, the US 10-Year Treasury yield has eased slightly to 4.37%, yet firm Fed rate expectations continue to weigh on gold and risk assets alike; DXY holds relatively firm at 101.35. VIX at 16.93 remains below historical averages, but its intraday gain of 2.9% signals mounting unease. Today's Eurozone CPI Flash Estimate (prior: 3.2%, forecast: 3.0%) and US ISM Manufacturing PMI (forecast: 53.8), along with tomorrow's Non-Farm Payrolls (forecast: 114K), are the week's key data points — a weak jobs print could meaningfully shift Fed rate-cut expectations. Total crypto market cap stands at $2.12 trillion while BTC dominance climbs to 55.4%, reflecting a flight from altcoins into Bitcoin as a relative safe haven within crypto.

Analyst Note: The 2Y-10Y spread at 27.2 bps remains positive, suggesting growth concerns persist without imminent recession pricing. The combined stablecoin market cap holding steady at $257.8B shows no large-scale flight out of stablecoins, but this dry powder has yet to rotate back into crypto assets. SMH's daily gain of 3.78% reflects relative resilience in semiconductors, underpinned by AI-driven demand narratives.

BTC funding rate remains positive but subdued at 0.0065%, suggesting no extreme leveraged long buildup in perpetual futures — yet the ongoing downtrend limits the potential for any sustained short-squeeze rally. ETH funding at 0.0025% is even lower, confirming tepid demand on the Ethereum side.

SPOT ETF FLOWS HISTORY (LAST 10 DAYS)

Analyst Note: Spot Bitcoin ETFs recorded a combined outflow of -$222.6M on June 30, with IBIT alone accounting for -$212.4M; critically, this marks a continuous streak of outflows spanning the past two weeks. Persistent negative ETF flows indicate that institutional investors are reducing spot BTC exposure, keeping near-term buying pressure weak.

Global AI wave revs up Asian factories, offsetting war-induced pain Reuters

AI Insight: The report of the global AI wave revving up Asian factories aligns with SMH's 3.78% daily surge, supporting the semiconductor and tech sector narrative; however, the positive spillover into crypto remains absent given persistent ETF outflows and subdued BTC price action.

South Korea cargo ship Namu to exit Strait of Hormuz after attack in Gulf Reuters

AI Insight: The attack on the South Korean cargo ship Namu in the Gulf re-introduces Strait of Hormuz risk into the equation; with Brent crude already down to $72.09 and gold near 7-month lows, markets appear to be underpricing a potential escalation that could sharply reprice energy and safe-haven assets.
