

WEEKLY DEEP DIVE

Strategic Liquidity, Macro Themes & Crypto Rotation

Sun, Oct 4 2026

Data cut: 2026-10-04 22:29 TRT

WEEK IN ONE MINUTE

NEUTRAL The NEUTRAL regime reflects a fragile balance in which sufficient liquidity supports the market, but inflation and weak spot confirmation constrain a durable advance.

The week's central picture is a balance between loose financial conditions and persistent inflation. Stablecoin supply rose to 311.953 and BTC ETF weekly flow reached 82.90000000000002, but ETH ETF flow was -118.0 and the Coinbase premium remained negative. BTC-NDX correlation at 0.65 indicates that crypto remains tied to risk appetite in technology equities rather than entering an independent advance. This mix favors selective rotation and volatile consolidation over broad directional confirmation.

THREE THEMES OF THE WEEK

THEME 1 · LIQUIDITY BALANCE

Financial conditions remain loose, while the Fed balance sheet's weekly change of -0.07 provides a marginal brake. Stablecoin supply reaching 311.953 supports crypto-native purchasing capacity.

THEME 2 · FLOW DIVERGENCE

BTC ETF weekly flow was 82.90000000000002, while ETH ETF flow at -118.0 shows institutional demand diverging across assets. The negative Coinbase premium confirms that spot demand is not yet broad-based.

THEME 3 · MACRO DEPENDENCE

BTC-NDX correlation at 0.65 increases crypto's sensitivity to risk appetite in technology equities. Inflation remaining at 3.69 could pressure valuations through this linkage.

US Inflation Path (CPI, Core CPI, Core PCE YoY — 5-Year) · series date 2026-08

What happened: In August 2026, CPI was 3.69%, core CPI was 2.75%, and core PCE was 3.01%, while the prior reading for October 9 UoM inflation expectations was 4.6%.

What it means: With inflation gauges still elevated, risk appetite for rate-sensitive technology equities and crypto assets remains skewed lower over the 24-day period before the October 28 FOMC; UoM expectations holding above 4.6% would reinforce that pressure.

LIQUIDITY REGIME

US Federal Reserve Net Liquidity (3-Year Weekly) · series date 2026-10-04

Chicago Fed Financial Conditions Index — NFCI (3-Year Weekly) · series date 2026-09-25 -0.548 (+0.005 w/w)

What happened: The Fed balance sheet stands at $6.74T, with a weekly change of -0.07 and a monthly change of 0.09, while the NFCI at -0.548 indicates that financial conditions remain loose.

What it means: If the weekly balance-sheet contraction persists, upside positioning in BTC and high-beta equities should remain cautious in the near term; still-loose financial conditions may limit downside risk for these assets.

What happened: This week's calendar includes FOMC Meeting Minutes on 07 Oct Wed, Unemployment Claims on 08 Oct Thu, and consumer sentiment and inflation expectations on 09 Oct Fri, with 24 days until the next FOMC.

What it means: The 24-day window and the high-importance minutes raise short-term volatility risk in US Treasuries, the dollar, and BTC after 07 Oct Wed; the directional threshold for risk appetite will be the minutes' tone on the rate path.

What happened: BTC’s 30-day correlation with the NDX has risen to 0.65, while its 90-day correlation stands at 0.37.

What it means: In the near term, an NDX risk-off move creates downside risk for BTC; as long as correlation remains around 0.65, BTC positioning should track the direction of technology equities.

What happened: In the latest week, BTC ETFs recorded 82.90000000000002M in net inflows while ETH ETFs saw -118.0M in net outflows.

What it means: In the short term, ETF outflows persisting below the -118.0M threshold raise downside risk for ETH, while BTC's 82.90000000000002M positive flow provides relative support for BTC.

STABLECOIN SUPPLY & SHARE

What happened: Total stablecoin supply rose to 311.953 as of 2026-10-04.

What it means: The expanding liquidity base supports upside risk appetite in BTC and the broader crypto market in the near term; holding above 311.953 is the threshold for this support to persist.
