RISK-OFF The risk-off regime is reinforced by crypto outflows, rising volatility and geopolitical energy risks.

Market conditions remain defensive: the VIX rose 3.76% to 15.46, while the US 10-year Treasury yield increased 0.84% to 4.70%. Although the DXY was broadly steady at 99.84, a 7.40% decline in the copper-to-gold ratio and a 2.28% drop in SMH point to pressure on growth-sensitive assets. Total crypto market capitalization fell 1.64% to $2.27 trillion, with Bitcoin down 1.6% at $63,865; the Fear & Greed Index stands at 29, in Fear territory, while Bitcoin dominance is 56.51%. Spot Bitcoin ETFs recorded total outflows of $144.6 million, including $53.6 million from IBIT and $40.3 million from FBTC, signaling weaker institutional demand in the short term. US CPI is due on August 12, with headline and core annual forecasts at 3.4% and 2.5%, respectively; August 13 PPI data will also be critical for risk appetite through its impact on inflation expectations and Treasury yields.

STRATEGIC RESEARCH FOCUS

COMMODITIES

Is the Iran standoff becoming a persistent oil-supply risk premium?

Uncertainty around US-Iran talks and China's role in balancing Asian crude demand put geopolitical risk and physical demand in focus at the same time. Examine EIA inventories and supply flows alongside whether oil can hold its one-week highs and whether the 4.66% rise in XLE proves durable.

PRIMARY SOURCES / REPORTS:

- Reuters — Oil steadies near one-week highs as US-Iran peace deal hopes dim - Reuters — Assess how the US-Iran negotiating stalemate is feeding an oil-price risk premium and supply concerns.
- Reuters — China is balancing Asia's crude oil demand by itself - Reuters — Investigate China's role in balancing Asian crude demand and the implications for regional supply and demand.
- EIA — Weekly Petroleum Status Report — Check crude inventories, refinery utilization, imports, exports and product demand for evidence that the geopolitical shock is reaching the physical market.

MACRO

Do CPI, Treasury yields and Fed pricing point to the same inflation signal?

The August 12 CPI will test how closely inflation moves toward market expectations of 3.4% headline and 2.5% core year over year, versus previous readings of 3.5% and 2.6%. The key research question is how a core monthly print above or below the 0.2% forecast would affect the Fed path and risk assets while the 10-year yield is at 4.699% and the 2-year yield at 4.19%.

PRIMARY SOURCES / REPORTS:

- BLS — Consumer Price Index (CPI) — Review the August 12 headline and core monthly/yearly readings, including shelter and services components, and measure the surprise versus the 0.2% core monthly forecast.
- US Treasury — Daily Yield Curve Rates — Track the post-CPI direction of the 2-year and 10-year yields from current levels of 4.19% and 4.699%, along with changes in the 2s10s spread.
- CME FedWatch Tool — Check how the CPI surprise changes rate-cut or higher-for-longer pricing ahead of the September 16, 2026 FOMC meeting.

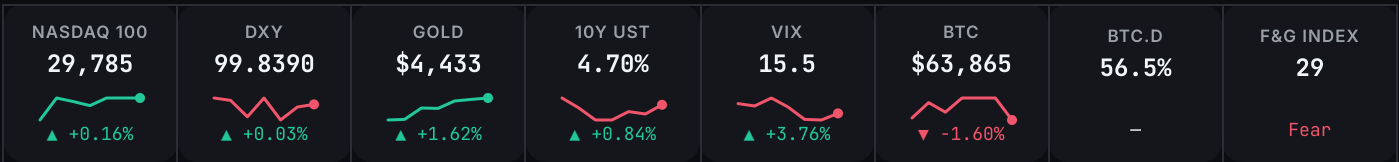

CRYPTO

Do ETF outflows and a negative Coinbase premium signal a crypto-liquidity regime shift?

Net outflows of $144.6 million from Bitcoin ETFs and $14.6 million from Ethereum ETFs, a 1.64% daily decline in total crypto market capitalization and a Coinbase premium of -0.0599 point to weaker institutional spot demand. Track whether BTC holds the 63,682.2 support or reclaims the 64,693.53 resistance, and whether open-interest declines of 6.66% in BTC and 1.22% in ETH represent leverage cleanup or the start of another selling wave.

PRIMARY SOURCES / REPORTS:

- Farside — Bitcoin ETF Flows (All Data) — Verify the $144.6 million total outflow on August 10 and the IBIT and FBTC contributions, then monitor whether outflows continue.
- Farside — Ethereum ETF Flows — Check the $14.6 million net Ethereum ETF outflow on August 10 and the ETHA/FETH contributions.
- Coinglass — Derivatives Data — Examine BTC, ETH and SOL open interest and funding-rate direction to test whether the 6.66% BTC open-interest decline reflects orderly deleveraging or a support-breaking selloff.

Analyst Note: The 2Y-10Y spread remains positive at 0.509 points, but the 1.41% decline in the 2-year yield alongside a 0.84% rise in the 10-year yield suggests that longer-term inflation and supply risks are gaining prominence. Stablecoin market capitalization fell 0.0072%, while the 2.28% decline in SMH reinforces weaker liquidity and technology-sector risk appetite.

China is balancing Asia's crude oil demand by itself - Reuters

AI Insight: China balancing Asia's crude demand on its own suggests that regional demand and supply flows are becoming more China-centric. Brent's 0.40% daily and 10.98% weekly gains, combined with ETF outflows and Bitcoin's 1.6% decline, indicate that energy-driven inflation risk could weigh on risk assets.

REUTERS · 01:41

Oil prices rise, Asia stocks drift on US-Iran stalemate - Reuters

AI Insight: The US-Iran stalemate supporting oil while Asian equities drift reflects geopolitical risk outweighing growth expectations. The rise in the VIX to 15.46, the 10-year yield at 4.70% and a Coinbase premium of -0.0599% all corroborate a risk-reduction bias.

REUTERS · 00:48

Gold rises for third straight session, inflation prints in focus - Reuters

AI Insight: Gold's third consecutive session of gains, with inflation data in focus, shows investors seeking protection against both geopolitical uncertainty and renewed price pressure. Gold's 1.62% daily and 8.23% weekly gains, alongside the 7.40% decline in the copper-to-gold ratio, support a defensive rotation.
